

TAKE A CHEETOS BREAK WITH CHEETOS. START HERE

COMMUNITY PAGES BROUGHT TO YOU BY: MGOE Madison Gas and Electric

WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL

Login | Register | Subscriber Services

HOME NEWS BUSINESS OPINION WEATHER COMMUNITIES GET IT HOMES JOBS CARSOUP RENTALS

TRENDING VOTE: NAME THE CUB! GET SPORTS NEWS ALERTS LOCAL AND STATE LEGAL NOTICES SENATE RECALLS INFOGRAPHIC CAPITOL PHOTOS

Home / Wisconsin State Journal / Travel

For skiers, snow makes a mountain of difference

STORY DISCUSSION

Font Size: - +

ANNE Z. COOKE and STEVE HAGGERTY | Dallas Morning News | No Comments Posted | Posted: Saturday, January 15, 2011 5:00 am Recommend Sign Up to see what your friends recommend.

4 retweet

SNOWMASS, Colo. — As the hours pass and the grape begins to flow, the talk turns to snow, a skier's only essential element.

George, our waiter tonight and a ski bum by day, cocks an ear. There's no such thing as bad snow, he tells our table.

"Never had a bad day in 25 years, and I've skied just about every place you can name," he says, clearing the plates at the Lynn Britt Cabin...

If George has been cruising America's many ski trails for 25 years, he probably has developed an intuitive sense of snow. When you work at a ski mountain from November through early April...

The average recreational skier, however, has to pick a date and take his or her chances. If you have just a few days to ski, why not choose a resort most likely to have first-rate snow?

Snow conditions depend on a variety of factors: the latitude, elevation, sun exposure and microclimate features, such as lakes, parallel ranges and deserts.

Get to know the details, then plan ahead so the snow is most likely there when you are.

Here are six resorts known for predictably fine snow.

Snowmass, central Colorado

For fresh powder and deep coverage in February

Early-season snowmaking followed by plenty of natural snow keep the mountains of Colorado's Snowmass in perfect shape for skiers from December through March.

MATT POWER — Associated Press

Related Stories

Ski schools track students with GPS

IF YOU GO

Check resort websites before planning your trip, and take note of the mountain facts. Then go to a couple of independent ski and snow sports sites that collect and assemble

Purchase or Refinance Your Vehicle Today 3.99% APR* Credit Union

MOST COMMENTED MOST READ FACEBOOK
• Judge issues temporary order blocking collective bargaining bill (584) Comments
• Calculating cost of state budget cuts (443) Comments
• WMC urges opposition to boycott effort (366) Comments
• Effort seeks to counter boycotts (273) Comments
• Walker administration still intends to sell state power plants (215) Comments
• Sen. Kapanke is target of threats, vandalism (195) Comments
• Analysis shows emails to Walker favored budget repair bill (194) Comments
• State seeks OK to appeal Judge Sumi's budget ruling (175) Comments

LATEST LOCAL OFFERS
Country Meadows - Special Offer on Rent
Print this out for an additional $25 Off 1st month rent!*
Spring to Get It Today!
Mention you saw this offer on Get It and receive...
Just Released - February 2011 South Central WI MLS Statistics
For the overall South Central Wisconsin Multiple Listing Service (SCWMLS), the same slip in total sales also took place -498 in February compared to 517 in January.
Hope Haven - Free Screening
Complete Assessment upon arrival.

resort data. These include Bestsnow.net, Onthesnow.com, Skireport.com and Sportsamerica.com. The most useful is Bestsnow.net, authored by lifelong skier Tony Crocker, a former statistician. The site compiles facts you won't find elsewhere, including percentages of skiable-powder days, the deviation from the average total snowfall and sun exposure. Most valuable are Crocker's personal observations.

More from this section

Travel digest: Illinois Wine Lovers Weekend starts Friday; Maple Syrup Fest in Monona is next Sunday

Time, tourism take a toll on Auschwitz-Birkenau memorial site; urgent effort underway to repair structures

Travel digest: Open house at Cedarburg winery and Titanic exhibit in Iowa

Hiking tours in Ecuador lead to adventures in the Andes

New Beatles memento museum opens in Buenos Aires through March, we like Snowmass Ski Resort 20 minutes from the town of Aspen. From December on, a combination of early-season snowmaking and scattered snowstorms keeps Snowmass' 11,000- to 12,000-foot mountains mostly white and skiable.

More...

Snowmass' heaviest snowfall comes in late February and March, accumulating an average of 25 feet on the trails, a thick base that lasts until the resort closes, usually in mid-April. Freezing temperatures at night and the region's famously low humidity tend to preserve powder conditions, especially at the higher elevations. Good grooming keeps it smooth until the end of March, when sunny afternoons finally turn the lower slopes to slush.

We try to make reservations for the first week of March, statistically the best month for total snowfall.

Information: www.aspensnowmass.com

Whistler-Blackcomb, British Columbia

This mammoth pair of Canadian resorts, with 8,171 acres on two adjacent mountains north of Vancouver, is farther north than any Lower 48 ski area.

Whistler's first snows typically fall in November, and by December you can ski most of the slopes. Total annual snowfall reaches an impressive 33 feet.

The low elevation (between 2,000 and 7,400 feet) and the coast range location can be a problem, however. Together, they can create rain at the base village and pea-soup fog on the lower slopes. Visibility shrinks to zero, but you can finesse the problem by boarding the gondola or nearest chairlift and riding up through the mist into clear air.

Snow falls throughout the winter and into May, adding to great ski conditions especially on the top terrain. Unless it's windy, conditions are generally better up high, with some north-facing slopes skiable into June or later. Most Whistler fans recommend February and March for the best snow coverage and clearest visibility.

Information: www.whistlerblackcomb.com

Heavenly Resort, South Lake Tahoe

With a reputation for some of the West's most unpredictable winters, when the snow finally does come to Heavenly Resort, at the south end of Lake Tahoe, it comes in a big way.

In a good year, the snow piles up in huge dumps, blocking chairlift platforms. By January, most of the mountain trails, which straddle the California-Nevada border, will be open. In record-breaking years, the heaviest snowfalls occur in February or later.

Heavenly's 10,000-foot elevation supports trees to the summit, a condition that seems to slow late-season melting. However, with Lake Tahoe at the base, creating the lake-effect condition, late-season snow may be wet and sticky, deserving the nickname, "Sierra cement." Colorado skiers poke fun at it, but Californians and Nevadans, who treasure their lake, ski it with aplomb.

If the winter looks like a blockbuster, you'll know by January, in time to plan a ski trip during nonholiday weeks from early February to early March.

Information: www.heavenlyresort.com

Taos Ski Valley, northern New Mexico

When the snow's good at Taos Ski Valley, a three-hour scenic drive north of Albuquerque, it's very, very good, and as light as talcum powder. When it's marginal, as in one of New Mexico's occasional drought years, you may have to search for it.

If you ride to the top of the highest lift, at elevation 11,819 feet, then climb 40 minutes more to the top of Kachina Peak, at 12,481 feet, you'll find it. For some skiers, that's too much effort.

Happily, the high elevation, thin air and naturally arid climate at the tail end of the Rockies makes for super powder snow, especially in March, when most of the heavy storms settle over the range.

In an average weather year, when the snowfall measures 25 feet, Taos' rugged, north-facing slopes stay covered, with few bare spots or rocks to grab your skis.

Information: www.skitaos.org

Steamboat, northern Colorado

For whisper-light snowfall, with multiple feet on the ground by January and storms through March, point your skis toward Steamboat.

The climate in the northern Rockies, on Interstate 40 west of the Continental Divide, puts Steamboat in the path of two storm patterns that blow through at intervals, ensuring regular dumps of Steamboat's legendary

Come Visit Liz Lauer's Open Houses This Sunday!

Open Sunday 3/27 from 12-2

See this offer

See More Offers

FEATURED BUSINESSES

I'm looking for:

Madison, WI

Located near:

Hint: Enter a keyword that you are looking for like tires, pizza or doctors or browse the full business directory, powered by Local.com

Search

Find us on Facebook

Wisconsin State Journal

2,381 people like Wisconsin State Journal.

Kevin

Fais

Diane

Wade

Bryan

Facebook social plugin

No Resume? No Problem.
We Hand-match opportunities to your skills, experience, and preferences.
Click here to build your Monster Match skills profile today.

Poll

Vilas Zoo staff have selected five possible names for the male African lion born Dec. 18. The public gets to select the winner. What's your favorite?

Amari

Enzi

Jibini

Karne

Leo Pold

Vote

GET DAILY E-MAIL NEWS ALERTS

E-Mail:

First Name:

Web2PDF

converted by Web2PDFConvert.com

"champagne powder."

The resulting ski conditions more than compensate for the resort's lower elevation (6,900 to 10,500 feet). There are no above-timberline bowls at this altitude, but heavy snowfall and trees to the summit offer challenging glade skiing.

Information: www.steamboat.com.

Snowbird Ski Resort, Alta, Utah

Of the 10 or so ski areas in Utah's Wasatch Mountains, Snowbird is unusual, blending three features that create what some call the West's best powder snow.

The high elevation (between 8,000 and 11,000 feet), very dry air due to the location in the arid Great Basin and moisture from the lake effect (the Great Salt Lake is nearby) create monster winter storms.

So much snow falls — an annual average of 41 feet — that Snowbird opens in mid-November and stays open until Memorial Day.

Though skiers like to hype Snowbird's vertical powder steeps and glades, recreational skiers shouldn't be warned off. Just 35 percent of Snowbird's 2,500 skiable acres is rated for experts; the rest is divided between beautiful beginner and intermediate runs.

If you need more elbow room, ski over to sister resort Alta Ski Area, which shares lift-ticket privileges and ski slopes with its neighbor.

Information: www.snowbird.com.

Copyright 2011 madison.com. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

Posted in Travel on Saturday, January 15, 2011 5:00 am Updated: 10:32 am. Snowmass, Whistler-blackcomb, Heavenly Resort, Taos Ski Valley, Steamboat, Snowbird Ski Resort

Print Email ShareThis

Add or View Comment

Login to post your comment. If you don't have an account, you may register for one.

Recommended for You

- Enraged by Walker, activists put Kloppenburg's ...
- John Nichols: 'Dictator' governor checked ...
- Plain Talk: Prosser takes low road on conflicts ...
- Old University Avenue lane closure set for ...
- Driver injured in rollover crash after swerving ...
- Republican bill calls for a board of political ...

— SPONSORED LINK —
Snow-buried states brace for another blizzard - Weather
(From DailyWe.com)

Last Name:

Subscribe

CARSOUP JOBS STUFF HOMES

$34979
2010 Infiniti FX35
Zimbrick Inc. at Fish Hatchery Road

$4200
1999 Dodge Dakota
Private Seller

$34980
2008 Cadillac DTS 1SE
Bergstrom Cadillac

$6500
2002 Ford Explorer XLT
Private Seller

$38995
2010 Infiniti G37 Coupe x
Zimbrick Inc. at Fish Hatchery Road

ADVERTISER SERVICES

- Contact us for advertising information
- Download a media kit (PDF)
- Submit a celebration
- Legal Notices
- How to submit digital files for ads
- Place a classified ad for print or online

MORE SERVICES

- Contact Wisconsin State Journal staff
- Newspaper archives
- Newspapers in Education

RESOURCES

- Healing Arts Directory
- Go Madison! tourism guide
- Site information
- Madison area births
- Teachers: Check out the News Game
- How to contact elected officials

HOME

Capital Times
Wisconsin State Journal
77 Square
Sports
Obituaries
Games, Puzzles
E-mail
About us
Archives
Coupons
Blogs

NEWS

Capital Times
Wisconsin State Journal
National News
Video
Interactive
Resource Center
Photos

SPORTS

Badgers
Preps
Packers
Brewers
Local Recreation
Colleges
BadgerBeat

ENTERTAINMENT

Food
Movies
Music
Arts
City Life
TV & Games
Events
Comics
Travel
People

WEATHER

Current Live Radar
Forecast
Severe Weather
Airline Delays

COMMUNITIES

Groups
Forums
Neighborhoods
Celebrations
Worship
Posts
Photos
Videos
Members
My Stuff

GET IT

Classifieds
Coupons
Deals
Sell it Madison
Newspaper Ads
Business Directory
Place an Ad
Homes
Jobs
Carsoup
Rentals