

- Subscribe to Times Union
- Subscriber Services
- Advertise With Us
- Get TV Weekly Magazine

timesunion.com

Weather | Closings | Traffic | Help | Register | Sign In

Saturday, May 31, 2014
70°F Albany, NY
Scattered Clouds

Search timesunion.com Businesses

Home News Sports Business Opinion Entertainment Living Blogs Jobs Real Estate Cars Classifieds Index FIND & SAVE

Local | Your Town | Capitol Confidential | Newsletters | State | Nation | World | Technology | Special Reports | School Closings | All Stories

A place to elevate your expectations

High in the Andes, Ecuador boasts dramatic landscapes, charming urban areas

By Anne Z. Cooke

Published 4:06 pm, Thursday, May 1, 2014

2 of 8

◀ PREV NEXT ▶

Pedestrian street La Ronda is illuminated in Quito, Ecuador. (Steve Haggerty/MCT) ORG XMIT: 1151843

0 0 0 0

Tweet Like +1 Pin It

Larger | Smaller | Email This

Printable Version | Font

A pint-sized dish of cevichocho, served on the street in Otavalo, sparked one of those "ah-hah" moments so unexpected it caught me unawares.

By the time the three of us parked near the town's famous craft market, lunch time had timesunion.com

Search

Home News Sports Business Opinion

You Might Also Like

-  The Secret to The Best Meatloaf Ever
Jennie-O
-  13 Secrets a Funeral Director Won't Tell You
Reader's Digest
-  Red Sox Announcer's Son Gets Life Term After Admitting to Girlfriend's Murder
The New York Times
- Casey Kasem Found; Judge Orders Hearing on His Health
AARP

Latest News

Thruway lanes reopen after tanker fire

Sen. Tkaczyk announces re-election bid

Bret Michaels cancels Saturday night Albany show

Off-duty Troy cop aids arrest

chopped ingredients. For a second I wondered if street food was a good idea. Still, I was curious. And hungry.

"Do you really want to try it?" Aguilar asked, raising his eyebrows. A veteran guide, he knew tourists were squeamish about street food. And in Ecuador, ceviche was the street version of a Big Mac. "If you're sure," he said doubtfully.

Deftly piling chopped red and yellow tomatoes, toasted popcorn, red onions, white lupine beans and cilantro in the bowl, he filled it full. Then he sprinkled lime over the mix, doused it with extra juice from the tomatoes, topped it with bits of sliced chicken and handed it over.

I hesitated, took a bite, and it was ... heavenly! No wonder those kids look so healthy, I said to myself. They're snacking on vegetables.

"What did I tell you?" my husband, Steve, said, grabbing a photo. "Ecuador isn't anything like Kansas."

Ask me about the European settlement of North America and I can quote chapter and verse. But ask about Ecuador's cultural heritage or colonial history, and I'm lost.

Where then, in this country on the Equator, would a traveler find links to the past? Living links, too, not museum exhibits. We started in Quito, the capital, because this is where most flights arrive. And Quito is old, founded in 1534, just 42 years after Columbus discovered America. Perched at 9,000 feet elevation on a hill between the east and west ranges of the Andes Mountains, it lies at the foot of Guagua Pichincha, 15,820-foot high and one of Ecuador's 30 active volcanoes.

Twenty years ago, when I was here, blowing through town on a two-day stopover, the city, tired and dirty, was lingering on life support. Ecuador's currency, the sucre, was nearly worthless. Since then the patient has recovered. On March 13, 2002, Ecuador adopted the U.S. dollar, stabilizing the economy. Today, the heart of the old city has been scrubbed and painted, its buildings restored or hidden behind convincing facades.

Abundant lighting illuminates the cobblestone streets at night, trash vanishes in a twinkling, and public squares sport benches, grass and flowers. Purse-snatching in the old quarter disappeared overnight when the streets were converted to pedestrian traffic only from dusk to dawn. Looking down out of my hotel room after dinner, I could see and hear couples and families walking past.

As for history, we found it in Independence Square, where old men and visitors sit in the sun at the foot of Liberty besting the snarling Spanish lion. It lives in Quito's monumental, painted, gold-swathed churches and monasteries, where — on the Sunday I was there — the pews were packed and latecomers stood in the side aisles under dark paintings of tortured saints.

come and gone. Heading down the block we passed a group of teenagers in school uniforms crowded around a food stall, gulping down what looked like fast food. And whatever it was in those bowls — unidentified juicy bits — it made my mouth water.

"What is this stuff?" I asked Paul Aguilar, our guide, who after four days touring us around Ecuador was now more friend than hired help. Peering over the counter, I looked at the seller in the wrinkled apron and at the bowls of

timesunion.co

- Home
- News
- Sports
- Business
- Opinion

Photo Galleries

Local photos

National photos

Weather photos

LATEST NEWS

Sen. Tkaczyk announces re-election bid

LATEST ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

HBO's Silicon Valley finds fans in tech

Take Today's Poll

Do you view income inequality as a major problem in the United States?

But Quito was only the beginning. When I first put Ecuador on my wish list, it was the historic haciendas I wanted to visit. Originally land grants, these vast ranches boast illustrious family pedigrees and long traditions. Surely, I thought, the pioneers who tamed Ecuador's frontiers faced the same challenges as their North American counterparts — farmers, ranchers and plantation owners — did.

1 | 2 Next »

Printable Version
Email This
Tweet 0
0
Pin it 0

You Might Also Like

10 Slowest-Selling Cars of April
Wall St. Cheat Sheet

21 Things You Should Never Buy at Garage Sales
Reader's Digest

Saving Leilani: How a well-timed child seat inspection changed a...
State Farm

Flight 370 Search Crews Said Close to Finding Jet Bloomberg

From Around the Web

- 15 Ugly Celebrities without Makeup (She Budgets)
- 18 Funny Road Signs Worth Slowing Down For (Reader's Digest)
- Broke and Famous. 15 Stars That Lost It All. (She Budgets)
- 27 Foods You Should Never Buy Again (Reader's Digest)
- Guy Fieri Lamborghini Thief Gets Life In Prison, Spy-Grade Theft Caught On Video (Motor Authority)
- 5 Dog Breeds That Are Sadly Losing Popularity (Vetstreet)

We Recommend

- Painful and rapid spread of new virus in Caribbean
- E-mails reveal Porco family rift
- Medicare ban on sex reassignment surgery lifted
- Freed soldier's hometown makes welcome home plans
- Man found guilty of girlfriend's dorm room murder
- Bret Michaels suffers medical emergency at concert

Recommended by

World and national news

Displaying 1-4 of 12

Bahrain opposition to boycott legislative election

Italy midfielder Montolivo to miss World Cup

GOP lawmakers: Prisoner exchange violated law

Italy hurting after 0-0 draw with Ireland

(0) Comments

powered by:

Yes
 No
 I'm not sure

timesunion.co

timesuni

- Home
- News
- Sports
- Business
- Opi

- Subscribe to Times Union
- Subscriber Services
- Advertise With Us
- Get TV Weekly Magazine

Saturday, May 31, 2014
70°F Albany, NY
Scattered Clouds

Search timesunion.com Businesses

- Home
- News
- Sports
- Business
- Opinion
- Entertainment
- Living
- Blogs
- Jobs
- Real Estate
- Cars
- Classifieds
- Index
- FIND & SAVE

- Local
- Your Town
- Capitol Confidential
- Newsletters
- State
- Nation
- World
- Technology
- Special Reports
- School Closings
- All Stories

A place to elevate your expectations

High in the Andes, Ecuador boasts dramatic landscapes, charming urban areas

By Anne Z. Cooke

Published 4:06 pm, Thursday, May 1, 2014

3 of 8

◀ PREV NEXT ▶

The Old Town area in Quito, Ecuador, features a Jesuit Church filled with gold decorations. (Steve Haggerty/MCT) ORG XMIT: 1151843

(Page 2 of 2)

When a friend recommended EQ Touring, a Quito and Miami-based travel outfit specializing in Ecuador, we asked for an individual trip to the haciendas near Quito,

0 0 0 0

Tweet Pin it

Larger | Smaller | Email This

Search times

- Home
- News
- Sports
- Business
- Op

FEATURED VIDEOS

▶ Carney to Resign As WH Press Secretary

You Might Also Like

-

Billionaire Leader of 'Mafia-Style' Gang Sentenced to Die
The New York Times
-

Guy Fieri Lamborghini Thief Gets Life In Prison, Spy-Grade Theft Caught On Video
Motor Authority
-

Kate Middleton's Bare Bum Photo Is Embarrassing but SO Fabulous
Stirring Daily
- Titanic Mystery Solved with DNA Testing
Ancestry.com

Printable Version Font

traveling on scenic country roads. Curious about Ecuador's dramatic geography — on the equator but up in the clouds — I wanted to get close to some of those ice-clad volcanoes and 13,000-foot farm fields.

The final itinerary included hacienda reservations, a car and two top-notch guides (Cynthia Cabezas in Quito and Paul Aguilar for the rest of the trip). It also included a visit to Cotopaxi Volcano national park, where you can drive to the end of the road (the climbers start here, at 15,320 feet) for a close-up look at Cotopaxi's icy, 19,460-foot summit. Our last day was saved for Otavalo.

And were the haciendas historic? Yes, but forward-looking. Both Le Cusin, founded in 1602 by Jesuits, and Hacienda Pinsaqui, founded in 1790 and still owned by the original family, felt and looked like the 18th-century white-walled, red-tiled-roof colonial compounds typical of Spanish colonies. Surrounded with flowering vines and far from noise and traffic, they'll send you back to another century.

But Le Cusin's present owner is an American who restored the buildings and updated guest rooms and cottages, adding comfort while preserving the colonial feel. The wood-paneled living room and dining hall are reminiscent of a hunting lodge, and since they serve good food, encourage long evenings. The result is a loyal cadre of guests who winter over annually, settling into spacious rooms with fireplaces and staying busy dining on good meals, riding horses, hiking, sketching, studying Spanish and taking day trips to Otavalo.

Pinsaqui Hacienda, where we stopped for a bowl of loco (cream of potato soup garnished with cheese and avocado slices), is still owned and managed by an eighth-generation family member. Could he be the person whose photo, displayed on the wall, shows him posing with his horse inside this elegant old mansion? Guests enjoying acres of lawns and spectacular views of Imbabura Volcano may find approaching cars a rude intrusion. But the presence of 30 redecorated family-sized suites, fine cuisine and guided horseback riding is the evidence that guests are welcome.

Zuleta Hacienda, originally a Jesuit property, made news in the 20th century when new owners, the Plaza-Lasso family, progenitor of two presidents of Ecuador, turned the 4,000-acre ranch into a working dairy farm and cheese creamery.

As the ranch prospered, the Plasas built out, adding a high-ceilinged living room with family bedrooms at one end and a nine guest-room wing at the other. Today the hacienda, surrounded by trees, vast green fields, and a stable full of horses, is an example of the success of modern ranch management. Guests here are enthusiastic horseback riders, hikers and nature lovers.

We spent our last day shopping in Otavalo's craft market, saving the last 10 minutes for a sprint through the produce market. Instead, we spent an hour marveling at the kinds of vegetables that local farmers can grow at high altitude.

My list, hastily jotted down, includes kale, bunches of fresh alfalfa, leafy greens, peas, a half-dozen kinds of beans, red and purple berries, four kinds of citrus, tomatoes, tree tomatoes, tubers, bags of beets, onions, dried spices, 124 varieties of potatoes and 50-pound sacks of quinoa, alfalfa grain and three kinds of corn.

I thought I knew vegetables. But it was humbling to see how few I'd tasted or could even identify. I did find those white lupine beans, though, the star of my new, fast-food addiction.

timesunion.co

Search timesunion

Home News Sports Business Op

Photo Galleries

Local photos

National photos

Weather photos

LATEST NEWS

Tour de Cure is Sunday morning

LATEST ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

Man who accosted Pitt pleads no contest to battery

Take Today's Poll

Do you think Hillary Clinton, currently aged 66, will be too old to run for President in 2016?

Take that, McDonalds.

If you go

Flights to Quito can run from nine to 20 hours or more, depending on the airline, your departure city and the layover. We flew on TACA (a merger of four central American airlines) from Los Angeles to El Salvador, and after a 40-minute layover flew out from the very same gate. Flying through Santiago, Chile, can push the layover to seven hours.

Driving & guides: Driving on Ecuador's new highways (some still under construction) is an easy way for independent travelers to reach most larger towns and top-ten highlights. Taking rarely signed, pot-holed, back country dirt roads slows you down to 10 mph. If you're on a schedule, think about hiring a guide.

Tour companies & guides: Our English-speaking guides, who were smart, educated and upbeat, made our trip. EQTouring, which offers standard or custom itineraries, guarantees all its trip leaders. Find them at www.eqtouring.com

For EQTourism, go to www.eqtouring.com

Quito lodging: In Quito, we recommend two fine hotels in the historic center. The hotel La Casona de Ronda occupies a restored, completely restructured in-town residence; the larger Boutique Patio Andaluz is a new property on the footprint of a similar residence. La Casona is smaller and more intimate, with a tiny restaurant and indoor-outdoor strip of garden; the Patio Andaluz has several ground floor living rooms, second-floor balconies, Internet access stations and a spacious dining room. Both are within walking distance of the historic center's monuments, parks, restaurants and shopping. Both are within the restricted pedestrian-only area.

Haciendas: For more on the hacienda's history and lodging, go to www.haciendacusin.com; www.haciendapinsaqui.com; and www.zuleta.com

« Previous 1 | 2

Printable Version
 Email This
 Tweet 0
 0
 Pin it 0

You Might Also Like

Saving Leilani: How a well-timed child seat inspection changed a...
State Farm

10 Slowest-Selling Cars of April
Wall St. Cheat Sheet

J. Lo's Latest Look Has Us Totally Stunned, plus More Latino Celebs...
People en Espanol

18 Funny Road Signs Worth Slowing Down For
Reader's Digest

From Around the Web

- Roy Thompson Jr., War Hero Who Played Himself in Movie, Dies at 85 (The New York Times)
- 15 Unbelievable Cars Still Being Made (Auto Notebook)
- Broke and Famous. 15 Stars That Lost It All. (She Budgets)
- Are You Overweight for Your Height? (AARP)

We Recommend

- Rents cut at 1 World Trade Center, owners say
- Correction: Kidnapping Victim Found story
- Man charged with tattooing smiley face on girl, 12
- Cracks appear on ledge at Chicago's Willis Tower
- Man holding breath in Oregon tunnel causes

Not sure
No
Yes

timesunion.com

Search

Home News Sports Business Opi