TRIER, Germany -- Arriving in Trier on a dark and moonless night, was never part of my plan. I rushed through the train station, misplaced my carry-on luggage, found it after a frantic search then missed the express train to Trier. I should have slowed down, ordered a bratwurst in one of the station's cafes then moseyed on down to the platform and taken the next train out. What I mean is, you don't have to make the same mistake. Plan to arrive at dusk and you'll be treated to a light show, the moment when the spots illuminating Trier's Roman ruins blink on, bringing them to life. If you've done your homework in advance you won't think you've seen the ghost of Nero, as I did... Next »
